Program Started To Certify Teachers Of Slow Learners

A program leading to certification of teachers of slow-learning children has been added to the College of Education curriculum this semester.

The program requires 24 hours of courses in the field and is under the direction of Dr. Louis F. Brown, assistant professor of education.

Dr. Brown, a former school psychologist, guidance counselor, and special education supervisor, has worked with teachers of retarded children at Woodward State Institute, sponsored by the state of Iowa.

Dr. Brown also is associated with the Ohio Department of Education, in which he supervises classes in northwestern Ohio. He will co-ordinate the Bowling Green program with the state's department.

The program may be taken for graduate or undergraduate credit. Additional information can be obtained from Dr. William E. Harrington, dean of the College of Education.

IFC Discusses Rush Motion Monday Night

Interfraternity Council met Monday night at the Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity house and entertained a motion to allow "free association" of fraternity and independent men this semester.

The motion, which will be voted on at the Nov. 11, IFC meeting, stipulated that free association would not be allowed at organized parties or dinners (those which have entertainment or refreshments) would end three weeks prior to final examination week.

Council members heard Wallace W. Taylor, dean of men, explain the new University rule on alcoholic beverage consumption and called for extra precaution against fires in fraternity houses.

Dennis K. Wenrick, junior representative to Student Council told IFC members of a tentative Council plan to establish a leadership camp next year. Wenrick asked that suggestions from the IFC be submitted to Student Council.

In other business, it was planned that smokers would be held between 9 and 11 p.m., Oct. 31 and Nov. 7 in all fraternity houses. The fraternities will be paired together and invite every freshman man to visit one of the houses on one of these nights.

The purpose for this is to rush for the Greek system as a whole, not for individual houses to try and rush for themselves.

Variety Of Events To Highlight Dad's Day

Students Produce Annual Dad's Day Talent Show

Tomorrow night's annual Dad's Day Variety Show, a completely student produced program, is featuring a wide variety of University talent.

Talent which appeared last year and will again make an appearance in this year's show will be singer Linda J. Holman, the Delta Gamma Quartet, the dance team of Kay A. Schack and Claudette B. Flack, and folk singer David Browning.

New to this year's show will be singers JoAnn Brancifort, Richard A. Burkhart, and Sandra P. Sharp, who will each do solos, and two folk singing groups, the Ascots and the Phi Kappa Psi's. A dance routine will be performed by a group from Orchestis, the University modern dance club, and Emily E. Cotter will do a comedy monologue. The emcee for the evening will be Jan P. Heckler.

"Each year it is the tradition with the Union Activities Organization to take the dads back to yesteryear. We think we have a very successful show here, and we think the public will enjoy seeing these entertainers in action," said Gloria L. DiCiccio and Karen K. Simon, co-directors of the show.

Conference Scheduled Here For High School Counselors

The first of two high school guidance counselor conferences will be held on campus tomorrow. Ten high school guidance counselors from Ohio high schools have been invited to attend.

Charles E. Perry, director of admissions, will greet the counselors when they arrive. The counselors will then be taken to Overman Hall to discuss the University with former students from their high schools who now attend the University.

A guided tour of the campus will be next. "This tour will allow the counselors to become familiar with the physical features of the University," said Mr. Perry.

Representatives from the various colleges and departments of the University are scheduled to meet with the counselors after the guided tour. Topics such as: "How best to prepare a high school student for college," are scheduled to be discussed.

Lunch and attendance at the football game as guests of President William T. Jerome III will end the conference.

The second conference is scheduled for Nov. 23.

Patella, as "death" returned, in human form, to the "live" world for a three-day vacation, is a speech and theatre major from Youngstown.

He is supported by Sunya L. Graham as Grazia, the sweet young thing who falls in love with Prince Sirki and is persuaded to give up her life to follow him. Miss Graham is an elementary education major and a native of Columbus.

John P. Clark, of Springfield, a speech major, and Barbara C. Dunsmore, Toledo, an art major, also play supporting roles.

Patella, Clark, and Miss Graham have had acting experience in summer playhouses, and Miss Graham is a member of the Columbus Players Club.

Placement Preview Published To Aid Job-Seeking Seniors

The fifth annual Placement Preview, an 88-page booklet containing background information on more than 1,300 University seniors who will be graduated in January, June and August, 1964, has been prepared by the University Placement Office in cooperation with the Senior Class.

The publication is intended to assist job-seeking graduates and prospective employers by providing the name, address, educational background, age, military status, and job and location preference of each of the graduates, according to the student's major field of study.

An added feature of this year's publication is a listing of participants in the 1963-64 National Science Foundation sponsored Academic Year Institute in Mathematics for Secondary School Teachers.

The booklet which is financed by the Senior Class, is being mailed to approximately 1,750 companies, school systems and government agencies. Additional copies may be obtained from the Placement Office located in the Administration Bldg.

300 Tickets Remain For Artist Series

"Only 300 student tickets will be sold for each Artist Series presentation this year due to the fact that more season ticket books were sold this year than in any past year," said Claudette B. Flack, Union Activities Organization representative.

"It seems," said Miss Flack, "that the students are gaining a greater appreciation for fine entertainment."

One of the programs which the Artist Series will present in the future is the Chicago Ballet, which will present matinee and evening performances in the main auditorium on Jan. 12.

Earl Wrightson and Lois Hunt, both veterans of Broadway and television and successful soloists, will appear at the University Feb. 20.

Appearing March 6, will be the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra, a 50-member ensemble now on its sixteenth annual North American tour.

The final Artist Series presentation will be held April 15 and will feature the Little Singers of Tokyo, 30 boys and girls who will present a program of sacred music, English selections, and Japanese folk music.

Fathers, "pops," and dads from all over the nation are scheduled to be the star attractions in the University's annual Dad's Day festivities tomorrow.

Plans for the Day include the Miami-Bowling Green football game, the crowning of the "Dad of the Year" at the football game, the evening variety show, and an all-campus dance.

President to Host Breakfast

Festivities officially will begin at 10 a.m. with a breakfast for the Bowling Green player's fathers and their fathers. It will be held in the Dogwood Suite with University President William T. Jerome III as host.

Before the game, at 1:45 p.m., all of the Bowling Green player's fathers will be introduced wearing the football jersey number of their sons.

"Top Dad" Selected

During the halftime ceremonies the "Dad of the Year" will be announced. Earlier this week the players voted to select this year's "Top Dad."

Entitled "Those Wonderful Years," a variety show will be presented in the main auditorium at 7 and 9 p.m. The show is sponsored by the Union Activities Organization and the Varsity Club.

Dance Planned

The Annual Dad's Day Dance will be held in the ballroom from 9 p.m. until midnight with music being provided by Frank Bridge and his orchestra.

Dad's Day activities are co-sponsored by the Spirit and Traditions Board and the Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity with the co-operation of the Union Activities Organization with the Varsity Club.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Informed?

A Letter To The Editor (appearing today) states that the News staff is afraid of controversy. We are not afraid of controversy as long as it is informed.

A newspaper cannot print articles based on hearsay and rumors, on individual judgments made without research. We have been looking for it—but perhaps we cannot see every phase of campus life, every complaint, minor or major, often these must be brought to our attention. We cannot super-guess the varied opinions of more than 8,200 students, as well as faculty and administrative personnel.

We must be informed ourselves before we can try to inform others.

The author of the letter stated that any student can obtain world news through other media than the News. He is correct, but many of the students just do not read newspapers today and they do not listen to newscasts. We are trying to supplement these don'ts by inserting information to make them aware of the world outside of Bowling Green.

An undoubtedly rash generalization made by the author said the News has far less editorial content than "most" college newspapers.

A brief study of three Ohio college publications, plus the News, makes us tend to disagree.

The editorial pages of these four newspapers were measured to find the per cent of editorial and thought material (that which is conducive to serious intellectual consideration) that appeared in three issues of each publication.

The Ohio State University Lantern, often publishing 16 pages per issue, printed 202.75 inches of thought material out of a total of 3,300 inches in three issues—6.14 per cent;

The Daily Kent Stater, usually four pages per issue, printed 133.5 inches of thought material out of a total of 855 inches in three issues—15.4 per cent;

The Ohio University Post, usually four to six pages, printed 198 inches of thought material out of 900 inches—22 per cent;

The News, publishing four to six pages, printed 213.75 inches of thought material out of 1,371 inches—15.5 per cent.

Each printed less than "one-half to one quarter editorials"—and this measurement includes additional related material—pictures, feature stories, etc.

As for the controversy, a number of college newspapers seem to have an extremely negative attitude, which is not at all unlike the attitude possessed by too many individuals today.

Who is to say a newspaper should condemn—why can't a publication pat someone or something on the back?

Controversy may arise from what is printed in this issue—it could have arisen before—had anyone wanted to question or consider.

Responsible newspapers do not "make" controversy, they have to recognize a questionable situation and bring it to the attention of others.

As for being informed, the author certainly is not aware factually of the points he mentions. But we are more than willing to publish his letter—so he may have an opportunity to make a "fool of himself" because he did not dig up factual information to support his criticisms.

We extend an invitation to all who care to bring crucial and controversial issues to the fore. But we ask that they try to be informed as to the issue—for their own sake.

Biology Students, Faculty Bring 'Marine Land' To Bowling Green

By Jim Kleckner
News Assoc. Editor

The initiative of two students, the encouragement of an University laboratory instructor, and the advice of several biology department members and aquarium specialists have combined to create a marine salt water laboratory at Bowling Green.

The two students are Steven E. Toth and John L. Young.

Last January, they approached Mrs. Cynthia S. Groat, laboratory instructor in biology, with the idea of setting up a marine aquarium in the biology department, and collecting live ocean animals to stock it.

The students wrote to marine stations and various companies for information on how to start such an aquarium. Their answers, and in particular, advice from the Cleveland Aquarium, provided sufficient information to set up a small aquarium project last spring.

Mississippi Trip

In April, a group which included Toth and Young went to the Gulf Coast Laboratory in Ocean-side, Miss., to collect specimens for the aquarium. The group spent five days there, and returned to Bowling Green with many living examples of marine life. For the rest of the spring, the specimens were studied by zoology and biology classes. The success of the Mississippi trip encouraged the biology department to develop a new course in marine biology, directed by Mrs. Groat. Also, a new laboratory room has been built to hold part of the aquarium.

The new course includes research in the aquarium laboratory, and a field trip to collect ocean animals. This fall, a trip was taken to Woods Hole, Mass. Mrs. Groat said Woods Hole was chosen because it has a good variety of animals, and is the site of the Marine Biological Laboratory, the United States Bureau of Fisheries Aquarium, and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

Six students, Eddie E. Kopf, Dennis O. Overman, Mrs. Linda B. Scothorn, Ronald J. Spitler, Toth and Young, made the eight-day field trip.

Collect Specimens

The students collected specimens, and visited the three institutions to talk with scientists and view experiments. A large collection of animals was brought back, including varieties of crabs, lobsters, starfish, sea urchins, pipe fish (related to the sea horse), clams and snails.

According to Mrs. Groat, the collection already has proved valuable as a classroom aid in the study of invertebrate and general zoology. As far as the biology students know, no university this far inland has such a display of marine organisms, or has attempted such a project.

Future plans for the laboratory include expanding of the collection for research projects.

Fresh Water Aquarium

The biology department also is constructing a fresh water aquarium as a counterpart to the marine facility.

Mrs. Groat feels it was an interest in learning and research that stimulated Toth and Young to initiate the aquarium project. "We are quite proud of their achievements," she said. "Because of them, other students will have the opportunity to study marine biology."

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

In a recent issue of the B-G News, the editor of the News denied that the News is censored by the Administration. This is probably true, however, I believe that the News is, in a manner of speaking, censored.

I do not mean censored by officials, but by the News staff itself. The News staff has in the past refrained from dealing with any controversial subject. Compared with other college newspapers, the News is a rather dull, chronological listing of athletic and social events, with some world news thrown in as salad dressing.

I believe that the printing of world news, which any student can obtain via the mass media, is unnecessary and superfluous.

Most college newspapers consist of one half to one quarter editorials and contain many articles dealing with religion, philosophy, race, politics, sex, and student grievances.

I believe that the failure of the News to deal with these and other controversial subjects amounts to censorship, and that a college newspaper should be an instrument that stimulates the thoughts and conversations of both students and faculty members.

In my opinion, the News has failed miserably as a college newspaper. The recent articles on censorship said in effect, "Don't write to us about anything controversial because we don't want to print it."

The article also stated somewhat awkwardly that several editors of college papers had been censored by their administrations for printing controversial material and that it was the hope of the News that this didn't happen here. At least these editors had the courage to deal with controversial subjects.

I believe that if any student or faculty member desires to make a fool of himself through the News, that is his affair and not the concern of the News staff or the Administration.

Sincerely,
James Hitchcock

To the Editor:

Spirit is a funny thing. I've been here many, many years and I've never put my finger on it. Sure, it's pep rallies and big games, but here at B.G. it's more. Where else does a team 20 points down at half time get a standing ovation?

The easy games are behind. The tough ones lie ahead. Team support so far has been great. It will get even better. Let's show Mr. Don King, who is so high for that "other school," that we have the best "herd of elephants" and "yell like hellers" in the MAC.

Be an athletic supporter. See you at all pep rallies and games.

HE KNOWS HIS BASKETBALL TOO!

Falcon grid mentor drives for basket but can't forget his specialty

Nation's Winningest Grid Coach Has Awesome Cage Credentials

By Larry Donald
News Sports Writer

Jack of all trades, and master of most all of those that involve the coaching of athletics. This is the adage that might well be applied to Bowling Green football coach Doyt Perry. Perry, as you probably know, has compiled the winningest record in collegiate football. Perry, as you probably don't know, had a high school basketball record that closely paralleled his awesome pigskin record.

Coach Perry began his varsity basketball mentoring career in 1935 as head coach at Clearview High School. He proceeded to direct the Lorain County school to seven consecutive district tournament berths and thus established the now famous Perry winning habit.

From 1937 to 1951 Perry directed his basketball teams to four consecutive championships. His 1941 edition proved to be a blue chip squad as they went all the way to the quarterfinals of the state basketball tourney before

Falcons Boast Longest Major College Streak

As a result of last Saturday's startling upset of Dartmouth by Ivy League arch-rival Harvard, Bowling Green now boasts the longest major college winning streak in the country with eight consecutive victories. The Indians were riding a 15-game string.

Only four unbeaten and untied teams remain in the nation including Texas, ranked first in the country, Auburn, Princeton, and Bowling Green.

bowling. His overall log at Clearview was 72 wins and 13 losses in league competition over a seven-year period. He won the county championship five of the seven years at the basketball helm.

During his seven-year tenure at Clearview Perry also introduced football at the school for the first time. "You know," mused the Falcon football dean, "you wouldn't believe it but, I'll never forget the first football game we ever played there. I only had one boy who had ever seen a football game before, the rest had almost no knowledge of the game. I'll never forget winning that first game. I believe it was my biggest thrill in my career." In six grid campaigns Perry's charges compiled a 31-9 record.

In 1943 Mr. Perry moved to Upper Arlington High School where he served as football coach for six seasons compiling a 41-11-2. He also paced the Columbus school to the runner-up in the state baseball tourney in 1947. In his only year as head basketball coach the team recorded a 16-2 record and during one game scored 83 points. At the time it was the highest score ever recorded in a high score basketball game.

"We ran a fast break when the others didn't," said Perry in explaining his basketball offensive strategy, "but I think our success should be attributed to our hard work on defense. I always emphasized this part of the game whether I was coaching baseball, basketball, or football. Defense is always the hardest thing to learn."

Despite his outstanding success in teaching basketball, Perry was forced to terminate this phase of coaching and devote his full efforts to the time-demanding responsibilities of being the nation's winningest collegiate football mentor, leaving behind a 88-15 cage mark.

Miami Out To Repeat 1961 Upset In Crucial MAC Clash Tomorrow

Two years ago the Redskins of Miami entered University Stadium with an unimpressive 2-3 record to meet undefeated Bowling Green which boasted a 5-0 mark.

They returned to Oxford with a 7-6 upset victory. Sound familiar? It should because the setting will be almost identical here tomorrow at 2 p.m. when the Falcons, one of the four remaining undefeated major college grid squads with a 6-0 mark, will host disappointing Miami, 2-3-1, in a crucial Mid-American Conference clash for Bowling Green.

Past records are forgotten when these two MAC rivals meet on the gridiron because anything can happen and usually does. Few games have ever been played like their encounter last season at Oxford which ended in a 24-24 deadlock, leaving the 15,000 delirious fans limp.

The crowd-pleasing encounter featured:

* A 96-yard punt return by Miami's Bill Neumeier with the game just minutes old.

* A 52-yard field goal by Miami's Bob Jencks and a 42-yard field goal by the Falcons' Asa Elsea, the longest of his career.

* A 92-yard second half kickoff return by Don Lisbon, now with the San Francisco 49ers, which was nullified by a clipping penalty.

* A deflected pass which Bowling Green recovered on the Redskins four and scored the following play to give them a "safe" 24-16 lead with minutes remaining in the contest.

* A spectacular 61-yard drive by Miami behind the aerial artistry of Ernie Kellermann that deadlocked the game at 24-24.

* An interception by Miami's Scott Tyler who raced to the BG 16 with less than a minute remaining.

* A high snap from center which ruined Jenck's game-winning field goal attempt.

Tomorrow's clash will be the 21st meeting between the two perennial title contenders with Miami holding a commanding 14-4-2 margin in the series, the Falcons' fourth longest rivalry.

For five years in a row, the Redskins completely dominated the annual meeting, humiliating the Falcons 54-6 in 1950, 46-7 in 1951, 24-7 in 1952, 47-0 in 1953, and 46-7 in 1954.

Since coach Doyt Perry has been at the helm of the Falcons the defeats have not been so decisive, although four of Perry's eight collegiate setbacks have been administered by Miami. Bowling Green last defeated Miami in 1960, edging the Redskins 21-12. The previous year the Falcons handed Miami its worst setback in the series, 33-16.

WM, OU Top Mid-Am Stats

Although Bowling Green continues to lead the Mid-American Conference standings, Western Michigan and Ohio University remain on top in team statistics and Toledo's Dan Simrell and Jim Gray dominate individual departments.

The fast-improving Broncos are averaging 318 yards per contest to head offensive statistics while the Bobcats of Ohio are the top defensive squad allowing just 214 yards per game. Sixth-place Toledo ranks second in both categories.

With Miami's Ernie Kellermann sidelined with a hip injury, Toledo's Simrell moved into the lead in both individual passing and total offense. The versatile quarterback has completed 28 of 59 passes for 428 yards and rushed for 78 yards in 34 carries.

Gray kept his top spot in the league rushing department with 378 yards in 66 carries for a 5.7 average, well in front of Miami's Scott Tyler who has 248 yards in 40 carries for a 6.2 mark. In addition, Gray vaulted into the individual receiving lead with receptions for 145 yards and one touchdown.

Gray is tied with Bowling Green's Jay Cunningham and Ohio's Jack Hite for the MAC scoring lead with 30 points.

BG Blanked By Miami In Lone MAC Shutout

Since entering the Mid-American Conference in 1952, Bowling Green has been blanked only once. Miami did the trick in 1955, whitewashing the Falcons 7-0. In comparison, Bowling Green has shut-out league opponents nine times.

Predictions

Bowling Green 26 Miami 24

The Falcons won't have any trouble getting up for this one and have one thing in their favor—the winning habit. If the Redskins' great quarterback Ernie Kellermann, sidelined with a hip injury in last week's 13-10 loss to Ohio University, doesn't get well quick the margin could be greater.

School Reorganization Pays, Dean Tells Ohio Educators

High school reorganization pays dividends, Dr. David G. Elsass, assistant to the dean of the College of Education, told the Ohio Council for the Advancement of Educational Administration, Sunday, at the University of Akron.

Dr. Elsass has completed a factual study, based upon annual reports of high school principals to the Ohio State Department of Education, by comparing the status of 107 Ohio high schools before and after they were reorganized into 42 new districts between 1954 and 1959.

Campus Coed Named Champ Of Archers

Miss Carol A. Strausburg, sophomore health and physical education major, is the 1963 national archery champion.

Nineteen-year-old Miss Strausburg was national intermediate champion archer in 1962 and has been either the intermediate or junior champion since 1959.

She began her archery career in 1956 when she placed first in the national tournament for beginners. Since then she has been Ohio State and midwestern junior champion three times.

In 1959, she set five international intermediate records. How-

The study analyzed seven areas contributing to the high school educational program, including administration, finance, curriculum, personnel, and library facilities.

In virtually every area studied, there were notable benefits for reorganized high schools over those schools not reorganizing. Considerable improvement in the quality of teachers, greater choice of subjects, better library and guidance facilities, and a larger variety of instructional aids for more pupils were some of the benefits found in the reorganized schools.

Dr. Elsass stated that the reorganized school had obtained improvements at comparable or even lower rates of taxation than their sister non-reorganized schools.

Starting Time Set At 6:30 For Movies

The campus movies committee of the Union Activities Organization has changed the starting time of the first film showing of the campus movies from 6 to 6:30 p.m.

"The students were complaining that the 6 p.m. starting time was too early, especially for those who worked or ate late," stated Marsha A. Powers, chairman of the committee. "The committee decided to change the time to 6:30 p.m. whenever the movie lengths permit this to be done."

Miss Powers also said, "It must be noted, however, that all movies will not start at 6:30 p.m. Whenever the length of the features are short enough to start a half-hour later it will be done. Students should check the B-G News, the UAO flyer, and the student activities bulletin for the correct starting time each week."

Displays Aid Library Bill

An unusual display of books promoting State Issue No. 1 will be erected tonight in front of the Union.

Models of books measuring three to five feet in height, two to four feet in length, and one to two feet in width are being made by each sorority.

The reason models of books are being used is to emphasize the inadequacy of the present University Library.

The title of each book will be an analogy on a popular or classic book title such as "Anatomy of a Library," indicating the need for a new library.

The display is important because this is the last week end before voting on State Issue No. 1, and students' parents will be on campus for Dad's Day.

If all sororities cooperate, 12 model books will stand in front of the Union reminding passers-by to vote "Yes" on State Issue No. 1.
